SERVICE LEARNING

Together, Edison students spent

2,855 hours

volunteering.

They worked with

55 different organizations.

And dedicated

183 hours

directly to Edison High School.

COMMUNITY PARTNER: DECODING DYSLLEXIA

Over the years, many Edison students have volunteered for Decoding Dyslexia Oregon, a local non-profit driven by Oregon families and educators who recognized the need for conversations with school districts and policymakers regarding dyslexia.

In addition to raising awareness, providing resources, and advocating for the dyslexia community, they work to make systemic changes in our universities and schools to improve literacy instruction for all.

We are proud to partner with Decoding Dyslexia Oregon and are grateful for the work they do!

PARTNERS IN EDUCATION

Edison High School and Jesuit High School have a long standing, collaborative relationship. The "hybrid program" allows students to take up to three classes at either school.

This program enables the two schools to work together to best meet the needs of each student. Many Edison students participate in sports, theater, music, and other extracurricular activities offered by Jesuit in addition to benefitting from their diverse course offerings.

Jesuit students who need additional learning support can benefit from the smaller class size and specialized instruction at Edison.

Our teachers and coaches love having Edison students in their classes and on their teams because they bring an awesome spirit to our community.

*Colleen O'Mahony
Director of Learning Support
Jesuit High School*

In the 2020-21 school year:

57 Jesuit students took 82 classes at Edison.

33 Edison students took 54 classes at Jesuit.
